

Evening Chat

At a recent meeting of the National Association of Postmasters in the Capital City of the nation, the many interesting papers that were read and general interest that was shown in the work, calls attention to the remarkable activity displayed in every branch of the postal service since the coming of Postmaster General Burleson's administration.

It is a noteworthy fact, however it may be explained, that, excluding the border states, the south, properly speaking, has had but two men in that office since the day of Benjamin Franklin—Joseph Habersham of Georgia and Albert Sidney Burleson of Texas. The more populous states of the East with their political power and material advantages, have had the greatest number of such appointments. 23 of the 48 men who have held office have come from that section. The border states have had 15 and the West only 8. It was not until 1866 that the West was at all recognized in the appointment of such cabinet officers, when Alexander W. Randall, of Wisconsin, was chosen by President Johnson. Subsequently that state furnished three more postmasters General, viz., Howe, Vilas and Payne. In 1820 the Postmaster General became a member of the Cabinet by the action of President Jackson, his first appointment to that position, Hon. William T. Barry, of Kentucky, receiving that honor.

Pennsylvania and New York Lead

In considering the states of the union that have been most fortunate in appointments to this office, it is found that Pennsylvania and New York have each had six to their credit; Connecticut, Kentucky, Tennessee and Wisconsin four each; Massachusetts, Maryland and Ohio, three each and the remaining scattered among the 18 states from which all the postmaster general have been selected.

The term of service was, it seems, much longer in the older days than at present. From 1775 to 1850—75 years—there were only 17 men in that position, Gideon Granger, of Connecticut, having served 13 years and 8 months, and Return J. Meigs of Ohio, 9 years and 3 months. From 1850 to 1913—63 years—there have been 31 men in that office. Whether the shifting currents of political life and expediency, or other causes, have operated to make changes in this office, it appears that many occurred in the administrations of some of our chief executives. Roosevelt, for instance, had 4 Postmasters General; Grant, Arthur and Cleveland (in the latter's 2 terms) had four each; Washington and Buchanan, three; Jackson, Fillmore, Lincoln, Hayes and McKinley, 2 each. The remainder of the Presidents evidently held on to the men they had originally appointed.

The postmaster general being by the nature of his official duties brought into close contact with the people, it might be of interest to know something of these men, who they were, and what notable achievements are connected with their names; but all that is past history and does not concern the issues of today. A few of the more important measures may, however, here be mentioned.

During the administration of President Tyler, while Hon. Charles A. Wick of Kentucky, was postmaster general, many reforms were instituted, such as: changing the postage, improving the manner of letting routes by contract prohibiting private express and restricting the franking privilege. The foreign desk from which ultimately grew the admirable arrangements of the Postal Union, was instituted by Hon. Horatio King, of Maine. Through the efforts of Judge Hall, of New York, Postmaster General under President Fillmore, the postage on letters was reduced to three cents. The registration system came in under Postmaster General Campbell, of Pennsylvania, during the administration of President Pierce. The Free Delivery Service was inaugurated in 1863 by Hon. Montgomery Blair, of Maryland, also the money order system in 1867, in Lincoln's administration. The Railway Mail Service dates from July, 1862, when Judge Holt, of Kentucky, ordered the establishment, the first railway postoffice being from Quincy, Ill., to St. Joseph, Mo., on the Hannibal and St. Joseph railway.

Historical Data of Beginning and Progress.

Some interesting historical data touching the introduction or beginning of the chief features of postal progress other than that already given may be briefly summarized as follows:

Postage stamps first issued at New York, July, 1847.

Stamped envelopes first issued in New York, 1853.

Newspaper carriers, act of Congress February, 1861.

Free City delivery July 1863.

Money order system, November, 1864.

International Money Orders October 1867.

Postal Cards, May 1873.

Postage reduced to two cents in October, 1883.

Special delivery, October, 1885.

Rural delivery, October, 1896.

Postal Savings January, 1911.

Parcel Post, January, 1913.

The number of postoffices in 1789 was 75. The maximum number reached 76,945 in 1901, since which time, by the introduction of rural delivery, the number has steadily declined, 20,585 having been discontinued. July 1, 1915, there were 56,380 post offices in operation.

Extent of post routes in miles in 1790 was 1,875. In 1915 the number was 1,672,169. The miles of service performed in 1915 amounted to 617,637,795.

The entire compensation paid to postmasters in 1789 was $1,657. In 1915 the amount paid was $29,143,127. Salary of Rural delivery carriers has been increased from $300 per annum in 1897 to $1,200, the present rate. Present cost of rural delivery service per annum $52,000,000.

While the postal savings ideas date from 1911, it was not made practically operative until 1914, when unnecessary restrictions were removed and the plan popularized and encouraged. Amount to credit of depositors in 1915 was $65,684,708, divided among 525,414 persons, who took advantage of this safe and convenient way of investing their savings.

The Postal service has become a wonderful organization, transacting an average of $1,000,000,000 of business daily, through something like 300,000 human agents at 56,000 post offices and 6,500 stations of all kinds, handling annually about 1,000,000,000 parcels, 10,000,000,000 pieces of first class mail, and more than 1,000,000,000 pieces of second class matter, serving the millions of people of our land and conveying mail to all parts of the world.

WASHINGTON NEWS -- GOSSIP

By CHARLES BROOKS SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26.—At least one West Virginian will take the next examination for appointment as provisional second lieutenant in the army, and unquestionably there will be more as the date of the examination has been set far enough ahead to give others ample time to prepare for the test. It will be held January 29, 1917, according to an announcement made today by Adjutant General McCain.

Applications to take it should be in that office's office on or before December 31st next. The last examination was held last month and should all who took it pass, which is unlikely, there will be at least 600 appointments to be provided for in the coming January examination.

There are bills pigeonholed in committee introduced by the state's alert congressmen which proposed locating the then proposed government armory plants on sites available from Wheeling to Bluefield and about all available locations in between. Since the bill has become a law that the government shall go into the armor plate business to the extent, at least, of one plant to cost $11,000,000, it may as well be understood that the location of the plant is not going to be established by the mere passage of a bill in Congress. It is to be located by the Secretary of the Navy, whose selection of a site must have the approval of the general board. Secretary Daniels has set September 13 as the date for consideration of proposals from cities and towns that have sites to offer, together with such offers as private manufacturers may submit for the sale of their establishments to the government.

On that date members of the general board and Rear Admiral Strauss, chief of ordnance, will be present to hear claims of the cities which have asked for the plant. A written brief for consideration of the general board, which under the law must finally approve the site chosen by the Secretary of the Navy, must be filed in each case.

There being no session of the House yesterday, Congressman Littlepage took an afternoon off, spending it in the Postoffice department where he had a host of so-called little things.

Driving his high power touring car from Wildwood, N. J., and accompanied by his wife and children, Sam W. Meals, a leading citizen of Moundsville, was held up here for a day until he could secure passports to enable him to proceed out of the District of Columbia via Pennsylvania to his home. These were finally issued to him by the health authorities, and Mr. Meals and his family departed. The infantile paralysis scourge is the cause of these precautions. There are now 29 cases in Washington. When Mr. Meals arrived here he had a collection of clearance papers from three states—New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

W. W. Kingsley has been suggested for appointment as postmaster at Mucklow by Congressman Sutherland, but which are big things to the people directly concerned, to attend to for constituents. A congressman's life, however, is, for the most part, composed of just one of those so-called little things after another, and in the aggregate they take a lot of his time, so complex and dilatory are the red tape methods of the ponderous governmental machinery. Here are just a few of the things which detained the Third district representative at the War Department for nearly a half day:

Requested the re-establishment of postoffices at Mucklow and Villaberg, two Kanawha county mining villages; secured the establishment of a postoffice in Clay county to be known as Hawberg, and recommended the appointment of Paul Hardman as postmaster; recommended the appointment of Mrs. Amanda Lilly as postmistress at Crow, Raleigh county; secured an order to investigate the mail service on rural route No. 1, Huntersville, Pocahontas county, with a view to improving the service in accord with suggestions made by people who are hoping for better service than they are now getting. From that department, Mr. Littlepage visited the Pension Bureau where he called up, and urged immediate consideration of the claims of Mrs. James H. Baker, of Charleston, and Mrs. Frances Vernon, of Mount Hope, Fayette county, and her minor children.

An increased pension under the age law will be issued to James Michael, of Middlebourne, so Congressman Sutherland has been notified, as soon as the exact date of birth of the applicant is ascertained from him by the Pension Bureau. An application for fish from R. R. Chrisman, of Morgantown, having been forwarded by Mr. Sutherland to the U. S. Fish Commissioner, that official has acknowledged receipt and approval of the same.

Congressman George M. Bowers spent yesterday making the rounds of the various departments attending to business in which many of his constituents are interested. He spent several hours in the Pension Bureau looking into cases he has pending there for citizens of the Second district.

West Satterfield, president; L. E. Hall, vice president; Chas. M. Satterfield, secretary; S. H. Satterfield, treasurer.

This is the first reunion of this family and it is thought it will be an annual affair hereafter.

Mrs. T. B. Robinson and her son, D. C. Robinson, and daughter, Miss of Little Hocking, Ohio, left this morning in their touring car for their home after a visit with Mrs. Robinson's sons, J. C. and C. S. Robinson.

who has also requested that in view of a man having been found willing to take charge of the office that it not be discontinued. At this meeting the Postoffice Department, Wacom is another doomed postoffice in the same part of the state, which Mr. Sutherland today urged the department not to discontinue. The abolishment of both of these offices would greatly increase the coal companies doing business in that locality, and also many private families. Mr. Sutherland has urged the department to improve the mail service on the star route connecting Purgitsville with Moorefield.

Judge William W. Rucker, who is serving his eighth term in Congress from the Second Missouri district, has returned from Lewisburg, W. Va., where he went to attend the funeral of his brother, Hon. James T. Rucker, known throughout West Virginia for years as an educator, aggressive Republican party leader, and for many years head of the deaf, dumb and blind institute at Romney. Judge Rucker is the last of three brothers, natives of West Virginia, who attained prominence in public and professional life. The other brother was the late Edwin P. Rucker, one time attorney general of West Virginia, and one of the state's ablest lawyers and most brilliant orators.

The commission of William E. Patterson, who was appointed August 1st postmaster at Davis, has been made out at the Postoffice Department, signed by the President, and mailed to him. The postoffice at Jeffrey has been ordered abolished, and mail for there will hereafter be sent to Hewitt, W. Va.

An increased pension under the age law will be issued to James Michael, of Middlebourne, so Congressman Sutherland has been notified, as soon as the exact date of birth of the applicant is ascertained from him by the Pension Bureau. An application for fish from R. R. Chrisman, of Morgantown, having been forwarded by Mr. Sutherland to the U. S. Fish Commissioner, that official has acknowledged receipt and approval of the same.

MANY MEN AND WOMEN OF OUR HOME STATE

Warwood, W. Va.—"I have learned to depend on Dr. Pierce's remedies and found them reliable. I used 'Favorite Prescription' first and found it so good that I began using 'Golden Medical Discovery' with it. The general benefit to me was greatest when these two were used at the same time. My appetite improved, I gained in flesh and felt stronger and more ambitious under this treatment. I finally decided to use 'Pleasant Pellets' also and they were just as good as the other medicines. I am glad to say when I begin to feel run down I always get Dr. Pierce's remedies and they do the work for me."—Mrs. A. J. L., 19th St.

Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the world's proved blood purifier. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper.
